THE CITY.

Wife Murder.

Alex. Gravioita, an Italian, shot and killed his wife in New Orleans, on Thursday. Jealousy.

If you wish to smoke a genuine imported cigar, buy from E. Peynado & Co.'s Louisville Hotel stand.

Gossip for the Ladies.

On dit that one of the most captivating of Kentucky's fair daughters will shortly adopt the stage as a profession. The lady is one of the brightest and most intelligent of her sex.

Harper's Exchange.

It was thought by many that the four-mile race of Friday would be injurious to Mr. Harper's splendid race-horse Exchange. We are glad to state that these apprehensions are unfounded. Exchange is in fine condition and not a bit worsted by that severe contest. He has the promise of a brilliant future.

Excitement--Explosion.

About 7 o'clock last evening a pistol-shot was heard on Jefferson, between Floyd and Preston, and as a locomotive was passing along at the time, no little commotion was created, till the secret was known. Some hard-headed boy had put a loaded cartridge on the track, and the passage of the locomotive over it caused the explosion.

The Anniversary of Columbus.

The Columbian anniversary, October 12th, will be celebrated by all the Italians in the country. The day will yet be a national holiday, and thus consecrate the name of the great Genoese in the hearts of our people, as well as in those of the land that gave him birth. An advertisement in another column gives the particulars of the celebration here to-morrow.

Accidental Insurance.

Mr. William Kriegshaber, agent of the Accidental Fire Insurance Company of San Francisco advertises his card elsewhere. The company he represents is entirely reliable. Mr. Kriegshaber is so well known here that a word of commendation is unnecessary. He is competent and very energetic, and will prove a great acquisition to the company.

The Coffey Barn.

Messrs. Woods & Seiger have finally triumphed over all the obstacles which have presented themselves, high water among the rest, and will this morning begin to pump the water out of their moveable coffee dam near the foot of Sixth street. The pumps are all ready, and everything appears to be in good order. So soon as the water is out the rock excavation will begin.

The best cigars in the market can be had at Ed. Peynado & Co.'s Galt House stand.

Venus and Saturn.

The planets Venus and Saturn are now apparently approaching each other; the least distance will be reached about a quarter past 8 o'clock on the evening of the 25th instant, when Venus will be 33 degrees south of Saturn. They will then be 2 hours 50 minutes beyond the sun, and visible in the southwestern part of the heavens for some time after sunset. Saturn is now commencing to move forward slowly. He has been for some months nearly stationary above the tail of Scorpio, and about midway between Antares and Eta Ophiuchi.

Drunken Spree.

Two fellows were in a saloon yesterday afternoon, at the corner of Third and Water streets, and, taking on board more of the fire-water than was consistent with the preservation of an equable temperament, they became greatly elevated—so elevated, in fact, that they took it into their heads that all they saw was theirs, to do with as they chose, and, carrying their imagination into effect, began to break things indiscriminately. To this the landlord objected so earnestly that they found themselves on the sidewalk in a jiffy. Just then a couple of M. P.'s came along, and, learning the facts, walked them off to the station-house.

After the Races.

Several stables of blooded horses have already left for Nashville, where some of them will repeat the victories they have won here. The meeting at Woodlawn, by the way, is the most successful of all since its inauguration as a race course. This meeting would not have been held for the generosity of J. B. Parks, Esq., who guaranteed the purses. He deserves the praise and thanks of all lovers of this exciting sport. Mr. H. W. Farris, the superintendent, also contributed to its success by his judicious management. The pools sold on the races amounted in the aggregate to $125,000, and as there was by-betting, at least $150,000 changed hands.

Grand Lodge of Good Templars.

The Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars of Kentucky assemble at Bowlinggreen to-morrow morning, and will continue in session until Friday or Saturday evening. Most of the Louisville delegation left on the 7:30 train this morning for that point, and the remaining portion will follow in to-night's train.

An election of grand officers for the coming year is to be held, and other very important business will be transacted. This order has done much good during the past year, and every hope is entertained that the three hundred delegates, when they assemble in council to-morrow, will take steps to insure greater success in the coming one.

THE CHAPMAN SISTERS.

School, or Bella Marks.

The charming young actresses, the Misses Blanche and Ella Chapman, aided by Bishop, the comedian, have for a week given the public some very rare entertainments in burlesque, in comedy and farce, and they bring forward to-night a new comedy by T. W. Robertson, author of "Home," "Caste," "Ours," &c., which has elicited the very highest encomiums of the London press. It is entitled "School, or the story of Bella Marks." The argument is somewhat similar to that of the charming Cinderella, of which the world will never grow tired.

Bella Marks is left an orphan, but attracts the attention of Mr. Sutcliffe, proprietor of a female seminary. He takes her to the school, where she gains an education, while she also assists in the performance of various menial tasks. She advances rapidly and soon becomes an under-tutor, in which position she engages the attention of Krux, the usher, who proposes marriage. This she indignantly rejects, and he thenceforth becomes her implacable enemy. Naomi Tighe, an orphan heiress, also at the school is a firm friend of Bella, and after a time, Mr. Percy Farintosh, a wealthy and vain old widower, accompanied by his nephew, Lord Arthur Beanfay, and the latter's friend Jack Poyntz, pay a visit to the school to see Miss Naomi, as she is desired for a wife to Lord Arthur. The two young gentlemen become acquainted with the young ladies. Friendship ripens into love; but Arthur fancies Bella, and, when he ended his visit, put an engagement ring on her finger. Krux learns enough to make him busy, and he stops not to tell he has Miss Bella dismissed from the school. After a time it proves that Bella is Mr. Farintosh's lost grand-child, and he returns to claim her. Lord Arthur also appears and is beset by the old man to know what he has done with Bella. The documents are restored to her, and the schoolmaster is greatly relieved. There will be hundreds of delegations entitled to seats, and the accommodations will be limited. It will be improper for any person to seek for more seats than the badge of representation gives them. That gives to each city of 8,000 or less one delegate, and where there is 10,000 more population one more delegate, and so on for each additional 10,000.

From each Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce, or similar association, one delegate for each one hundred members, and for any fractionally hundred.

For each railroad, steamboat, mining or manufacturing company, one delegate provided it is incorporated and has over $50,000 cash capital paid in.

The hat of the Theatrical will not accommodate more than 1,500 persons, when the stage is also filled with chairs. The indications point to more delegates than that number. The first gallery will be reserved for honorary members.

In order to designate the various delegations, etc., the committee will use red, white and blue rosettes.

For the General Committee of Louisville-Mayor, Board of Education, blue and white rosettes with red streamer.

For delegates appointed by State, white rosettes.

For delegates appointed by cities, blue rosettes with white streamers.

Members of the press, red streamers.

Reporters, pens and pencils, red rosettes with blue streamers.

All of the delegates must obtain badges, as the doorkeepers will otherwise refuse to admit anybody not wearing a badge. The streamers used have upon them the Kentucky coat of arms, "United we stand, divided we fall."

Order of March of the Grand Procession, Thursday, the 14th instant.

The column will form on Jefferson street, the corner of Main, and will move on Jefferson to Third street, down Ninth to Main, up Main to Brook street, out Brook to Market, down Market to Ninth, out Ninth to Jefferson, up Jefferson to Fourth, when the procession will be dismissed.

To avoid confusion, all firms, organizations, &c., wishing to take part in the procession, are requested to report on any of the cross streets below Fourth, excepting 8 o'clock as possible, and the Marshals will promptly assign them their proper positions in the procession.

The Assistant Marshals will report for duty by 7:30 o'clock, corner Jefferson and Fifth streets.

THE COMMERCIAL CONVENTION.

A WALKING CLOTHING STORE.

Laughable Scene.

Order of Arrangements During the Week. The following arrangements have been made by the General Committee:

In accordance with the resolution of the General Council (Major Bunce and the committee having arranged for a public reception of Ex-President Fillmore on Monday, the 11th, in the Common Pleas Court room from 11 A. ## Important Elections.

The great States of New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio are about to hold general elections. In Pennsylvania and Ohio Governors are to be elected, and in New York the question of negro suffrage is to be decided. New York also elects some State officers, but the great question there is the right of the negro to vote. The local as well as the State offices to be filled in the Empire State pass into the question in the shadow of the great question of negro equality.

Elections in these three States have always been looked upon with concern, because of the vast population that there vote. By the last census the State of New York was shown to have a population of 3,889,735 souls; Pennsylvania, 2,906,115, and Ohio 2,339,511. The aggregate population of these three great States was, therefore, nearly one-third of the entire nation. And the constant increase there since the last census leaves but little doubt that the number of souls in these three States is probably one-third of the entire nation at this time.

We doubt not that the multitudes who are about to vote in New York will say, in thunder tones, that they will have no negro equality in that State. They will give the negro to understand that they deem this a white man's government, in the conduct of which the black man can have no voice. They will say to the African: You may live in New York and enjoy the fruits of your industry and be protected by the laws which protect the white race, but you can't vote. Of course, if the 15th amendment to the constitution is adopted New York will have to let the negro vote. But that atrocious amendment is not yet adopted, and it may never be. To adopt it is to destroy all traces of the doctrine of State rights and make our government a consolidated despotism. The people of New York are not quite ready, in our opinion, to blot out all State lines for the sake of the negro; and we hope they never may. We wish we felt as sure of negro equality failing in all the Southern States as we do in New York. We predict that New York will repudiate the monster by fifty thousand majority.

In Pennsylvania there are strong hopes of the election of Packer. The contest may be close, but the chances of the Democracy to carry the State are encouraging. Pennsylvania has done some good things in our country's history, and if she will it elect Packer now she will add another jewel to her brilliant coronet. Both sides are hopeful of victory, but the chances seem best for the Democrats. We shall believe Packer will be elected until the contrary is shown by the count of ballots.

The Indianapolis Mirror polishes off one of the numerous brothers-in-law in this cruel style:

"A. R. Corbin is brother-in-law to the President, and a pious Methodist who gambles in gold, and tells lies about it afterward. At least that's the way it looks just now."

The New York Economist says the losses in the recent panic in gold and stocks were greater than in anything else of the kind since 1857. It also says that it is probable that the business of Lockwood & Co. will be renewed upon terms calculated to maintain the reputation of the firm.

A white woman in Louisiana has been initiated as priestess of the Voodoo order. The ceremony consisted of an incantation in which the novitiate danced, clad in a single white garment, within a charmed circle of beef bones and skeletons, toads' feet and spiders, with camphor and kerosene oil sprinkled about.

A FARMER near Pymont, Ohio, named Daniel Horner, with his wife and four children, was poisoned, on Tuesday last, by eating biscuit in which arsenic had been, by mistake, for soda. Horner died soon after eating. The wife is not expected to live, but the children are recovering.

An effort will be made by members of the Senate to oust Gorham, the present Secretary, and his clique. Gorham is connected with the famous or infamous California ring, which includes several Senators. It is the most corrupt in the country, not excepting even the Whisky Ring.

A heavy stock dealer of Richmond, Ind., is said to have forged checks to the amount of fifty thousand dollars on Richmond, Newark, Marion and Waynesville banks, using his father's name. He has heretofore borne a good reputation. It is said he has gone to Europe.

Millard Fillmore was the thirteenth President of the United States, and with the exception of Andrew Johnson he is the only living man who has filled his term and retired from the Executive chair of the nation. All the others of his predecessors and successors have been gathered to their fathers, and Fillmore and Johnson alone remain among us of the illustrious band whom the nation has honored with his highest gift.

While we are thus honoring with a public reception our distinguished guest, the funeral ceremonies of his immediate successor are being celebrated at the nation's capital. Millard Fillmore was born in 1800 and Franklin Pierce in 1804. The four years that intervened between their birth was the same period that separated them from Presidential honors. And while we this day tender joys to the living President, we will not fail to mingle sorrows for the dead.

The New York Herald says that Corbin "vows to God" he wasn't in the gold ring. But as Mammon is his God what are such oaths worth?

LONDON FUN, of Sept. 18, has a telling cartoon apropos Mrs. Stowe's Byron slander. There is a magnificent colossal statue of the poet, robed like a Roman Senator, resting on a massive pedestal. Aunt Harriet, in drugged skirt, frayed shawl, and hood, from which escape her elfin locks, is attempting to reach the poet's shoulder—to get astride, doubtless—and, in climbing, has left her dirty shoe marks on pedestal and statue. Police Constable Fun, standing by, sings out: "Now then, old gal, if you want to make yourself conspicuous, you had better go elsewhere, and not leave your dirty marks there."

The Independence Belge, while disavowing all faith in sinister rumors afloat in Paris, thinks it right to reproduce them, as showing of what the government is considered capable. One correspondent writes: "We even go so far as to speak of a coup d'état which is meditated in a high quarter. The frequent conferences of the Prefect of Police with the Emperor are thought to have had no other object than to organize this new edition of the 2d of December. The lists of proscriptions are supposed to be ready, and all measures taken."

It is estimated that the people of the United States pay one million of dollars a day to support card gamblers—professional players. To calculate the rate per year produces no very comfortable feeling. Can such an outlay be afforded? In New York city alone there are over two thousand professional gamblers. They live very extravagantly, and their personal wants, to say nothing of the business requirements of their establishments, must cost that community at least six millions of dollars a year.

By our last mail advices from Central America we learn that some steps are being taken in reference to the Darien ship canal. General Hurlbut, the United States Minister to the Republic of Colombia, has seen President Correoso on the subject, and finds him greatly in favor of the scheme. Moreover, the merchants of the Isthmus are now in favor of the idea, and are determined to have it at any cost.

THREE ladies have applied for admission into the Columbia College Law School, New York, but were refused, although no objection was made to them on account of age, education or character. The President of the school, Theodore W. Dwight, Esq., has, however, referred the applications for further consideration to the committee on the school.

A COMMITTEE in England has reported that "women are fast being drawn into the drift of demoralization and drunkenness; and that men go to public houses more to get away from their wives than from any other cause," that is, get drunk because their wives do. But isn't it much more probable that the women get drunk because their husbands do?

Some "horrid wretch" in England says that the long alphabet of woman's afflictions is without any distinct end or beginning; she mounts by insensible gradations from dolls and kittens and pet brothels to the zenith of passion, to descend by the same insensible gradations from the zenith of passion through pet brothers to baby cats.

Extract from a Letter from Santa Croix.

* * * * * We had wandered for many hours through tangled forests of tropical shrubs and trees, some of them emitting a most delicious and invigorating odor, when we suddenly came upon a large and well cultivated plantation, in the center of which were several buildings. Entering these we found them to be the "press houses," stills, &c., where the sugar cane is crushed for the manufacture of St. Croix rum. Over 100 coolies were at work, and the smell from the fermenting vats was very exhilarating and pleasant.

We were shown through the entire establishment, and learned that all the rum here produced was shipped to Messrs. P. H. Drake & Co., New York, to be made into their celebrated PLANTATION BITTERS. The peculiar good effects of this rum—which is the purest and best in the world—are well known. Not a single case of dyspepsia, fever and ague, consumption, or any such disease, can be found on this island (except of invalids here for their health, and they are almost always cured). Combined with calisaya bark, cascara, and other important ingredients, this rum becomes PLANTATION BITTERS; and surely no finer tonic and general family remedy was ever seen. The combination of these bitters was first discovered here many years ago, and all the natives swear by PLANTATION BITTERS, and say "there is nothing like it." Judging by the robust health of the witnesses, I am certain their testimony is true.

Attention, Georgia!

The members of the Georgia delegation are requested to meet at their committee room, at the Galt House, this evening, at five o'clock.

On Trial.

The case of H. A. Marchand, for counterfeiting nickels, is on trial to-day in the United States Court. The evidence has been heard, and counsel are pleading.

Omitted.

The names of Officers Browning and McGuire were omitted in our report of the arrest of Hagerly, the clothes thief. They were present and helped to strip the thief of his stolen property.

The Postoffice.

Dr. J. J. Speed will vacate the postoffice to-morrow, and Mrs. Porter will assume the duties appertaining to the place. Mr. Tuley will be retained as Assistant Postmaster.

Sentenced.

Robert Cecil, who was found guilty, Saturday, of resisting the United States Marshal, was sentenced this morning to pay a fine of twenty dollars, with costs, and be imprisoned two months in the Marion county jail.

The Georgia Delegation.

A special dispatch to the EXPRESS, received from Bowlinggreen this morning, says: A large portion of the Georgia delegation is on the train which has just passed up. Among them are Hon. A. H. Chappell, H. G. Wright, D. E. Butler, Col. B. C. Yancey, F. Phinney, W. D. Chipley, J. S. Hamilton, J. G. Reynolds, J. T. Cooper and others.

A Countryman in Trouble.

A visitor from the country was in the city last night, and instead of going to church or staying at his room, went to a house of ease on Lafayette street—by so doing he lost his pocket-book, containing $105. Our information given to the police Joseph Brown was arrested charged with a theft. The case was tried in court this morning, and the woman was held in $300 to answer. The keeper of the house then had him arrested for stealing from her, and he was held in $100 to answer.

Arrival of Delegates.

The city is rapidly filling up, delegates arriving by every train and every boat. The delegations from Owensboro, Henderson, Cannelton, and other points below, arrived on the Morning Star. The Nashville train brought delegations from Tennessee, Georgia and Alabama. It is important that delegates present their credentials and register themselves at 75 Fifth street as soon as possible after arriving, that they may secure admission to the Convention.

The Commercial Convention.

The general committee met in the Council chamber this morning at 11 o'clock, with Alderman Rubel in the chair, and a resolution was passed that the committee, with B. W. Jenkins as marshal, proceed to the court-house to receive ex-President Fillmore.

A room on the first floor of the Galt House has been secured as the headquarters of the Louisville delegation, where they can be found at all hours during the recess of the Convention.

The general committee then adjourned to 8 o'clock this evening, at the Council chamber, and a full attendance is expected.

The finance committee of the Board is requested to meet in the Mayor's office this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The order of the grand procession of Thursday morning next has been changed. Instead of going to Ninth street it goes out through Eighth street; up as far as Jackson street, instead of Brook, as has been published. It goes down to Eighth from Broadway; out Eighth to Main, then up Main to Preston, &c.

Delegates and honorary members who cannot secure accommodations are requested to report to R. Atwood, Esq., No. 111 West Main street.

EX-PRESIDENT FILLMORE'S RECEPTION.

WELCOMING ADDRESS OF F. T. FOX.

Mr. Fillmore's Reply.

At an early hour this forenoon the citizens began to flock to the court-house, and the east room was soon filled with an earnestly expectant crowd. At 11½ o'clock Mr. Fillmore entered the room, attended by his Honor Mayor Bunce, when the entire audience, by one impulse, rose to their feet and welcomed the city's guest—the nation's son—with loud and continued cheering.

F. T. Fox, Jr., Esq., member of the City Council, elected to deliver the welcoming address, stepped forward, and with deep feeling, and inspired by the occasion, spoke as follows:

ADDRESS OF MR. FOX.

Sir: Upon me has fallen the pleasing duty of offering you, through her metropolis, the greeting of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, and of extending to you the hospitality and the hearty welcome of our people. And in her name, and by her authority, I welcome you to her, and extend to you her freedom. Remembering that in every position of power and influence you have been known to the American people, your career has been illustrative of law and of order, and that your distinguished retirement from public life has been a source of great pleasure and satisfaction to the arts of peace; mindful also, that in all your official life your profound intellect has been thoroughly understood and frankly acknowledged by the people, and of the importance of our peculiar government, and that your great heart has embraced, in its patriotic love every section and every state, and that you have done much for us now, in its early youth, well-nigh demands a world for its home. Remembering these things, the city of Louisville, and, through her, the Commonwealth of Kentucky, are placing themselves in honoring you. We love and admire you as the last of that regime in our country's history which began with Washington and ended with your honored and illustrious successor whose death we mourn to-day.

With these, the least of which, of us may have entertained according to important movement, which to-morrow will take the form and complexion of a great commercial and political meeting, I present you with all my respects, and bid you adieu.

Yours, &c., F. DENT.

THE CONVENTION.
NASHVILLE, October 11.
Blanton Duncan, Esq.:

Your invitation to the Convention may have been received when I was from home, and on my return escaped my attention.

From all the indications, the convention will be large, and no doubt, great good will be done. Please tender to ex-President Fillmore my sincere regards. I wish I could be with you and participate in the proceedings of the Convention.

ANDREW JOHNSON.

WASHINGTON, October 11.
Blanton Duncan, Esq.:

Sir: The President being absent from the city during the month of August, thinks he could not have received your invitation to the Commercial convention, at least he has no recollection of it. He would have replied had he received it.

Yours, &c., F. DENT.

THE PRINCE OF MONACO has married the Hon. Lady Mary Douglas Hamilton. The bride wore a white satin dress, trimmed with lace, a tulip vail, a wreath of orange blossoms, and a pair of brilliant earings of great size and purity, the gift of her mother. Among the numerous presents were an emerald and brilliant bracelet and a thistle brooch, the gift of the Emperor and Empress of the French.

John Morrissey was on the train from Saratoga to Troy, the other day, and impressed by the suffering at Mechanicsville on account of the flood, he raised $800 for the relief of the inhabitants from the passengers, giving $500 himself.

Lydia Thompson will clear, it is estimated, at least $15,000 by her Philadelphia engagement.

How to make a cold chisel—lay it on the ice.

REPLY OF MR. FILLMORE.

MR. MAYOR AND GENTLEMEN OF LOUISVILLE: This reception is an honor and a pleasure which I had no reason to expect; and I came to make some high political offices, and to come to the great capital power, I might account for this assembly here to-day. Nearly twenty years have passed since I have taken part in political meetings. I do not care to be here to-day unawares. I could not have recognized it. True here is the grand old river flowing along its course here, the great natural object of all the country, and here it joins with the great commercial cities of the country, but now, when I see your splendid Union resting on the patriotic and glorious Union which has been endangered, but I trust not lost (applause). Fifteen years ago I visited your city for the first time. Here I was placed in it to-day unawares. I could not have recognized it. True here is the grand old river flowing along its course here, the great natural object of all the country, and here it joins with the great commercial cities of the country, but now, when I see your splendid Union resting on the patriotic and glorious Union which has been endangered, but I trust not lost (applause).

AN EXPENSIVE FLIRTRATION.

A Luka Street Merchant Most Beautifully Fleeced by a Handsome Woman and her Confederate.

From the Chicago Tribune, Saturday.

Fleeting is generally considered harmless.

It may be, but many a man and woman have bitterly regretted that they ever indulged in it. If young men and ladies are guilty of shaking their handkerchiefs, and throwing kisses at each other, it can hardly be expected that older persons, although they are supposed to have thrown aside such a silly practice, will be exempt.

To show what it costs a full-grown man to flirt, an instance which occurred at the St. James Hotel on Thursday, is a good illustration. About noon, on Wednesday, a tall and very pre-possessing woman, about 35 years of age, arrived at the hotel in question and registered her name as Mrs. Carr. She appeared respectable, and, in order that she might avoid running up and down several flights of stairs, was accommodated with a room on the second floor. A gentleman, whose name is well known in Chicago,

connected with a large firm on Lake street, boards at the St. James. He is married, but his wife is at present in an Eastern city.

This gentleman sat down to the supper-table on Thursday evening. Near him was seated Mrs. Carr. He admired her stately appearance and determined, if possible, to get up a flirtation. By shaking his napkin he attracted her attention. She looked at him sweetly, and he shook the napkin again. She gave him so much encouragement that when supper was over he followed her into the parlor.

After a brief conversation an arrangement was made to meet on the second floor. They met in her room, and while sat near the window, or somewhere else, a noise was heard. It was the knob of the room door turning. "Some one is endeavoring to get in," he said in a whisper. "No," replied she, "it is the nigger going out." Some one did go out, but not a waiter. It was Mrs. Carr's confederate.

The gentleman, when he entered the room, had $159 in greenbacks in his overcoat pocket, also his wife's watch. This garment he took off and laid on Mrs. C's bed. When he left the apartment, a few hours subsequently — in fact, before taking his departure—he discovered that the money and jewelry were gone, but prudence prevented him from making known his loss; but the little episode somehow leaked out, and caused considerable talk about the hotel. The "nigger," or confederate, had, it would seem, secreted himself under the bed, and while the gentleman and Mrs. Carr were conversing abstracted the valuables and took their departure. It was a very neatly played game, and no doubt will be a warning to the Lake street merchant to "beware of the vidders," in future, for "wimmin's is queer catties." Mrs. Carr left the hotel early on Friday morning.

A YOUNGDOOT.

He Practices the Black Art and Comes to Credit.

From the Nashville Banner.

A colored "Youdoist," named Alex. Morris was arraigned before the acting Police Commissioner Friday morning, for practicing deceit and witchcraft on a superstitious negro who had abandoned his wife. Morris had pledged himself to the colored man's wife to restore her to her affectionate care, and had determined to address himself to his superstitious nature.

Morris met the intended dupe in company with two other ebony individuals, and introduced himself as a "Youdoist," insinuating himself into the unfortunate confidence, scared him with the belief that he must return to the bosom of his family or suffer untold direful pains and aches, and that he would finally be dried into a crisp and blown away by the four winds of heaven, his limbs being separated from the body and his head sent down into the inconceivable depths of pandemonium to languish in eternal fires; that he (Morris) had been given power by his Satanic Majesty to do as he would on earth, and that for him to command was to have ready obedience to his will.

The negro's superstitions awoke having been raised to a high degree, he readily acquiesced in everything which Morris proposed. He asked Morris how he should accomplish the object desired; his wife was away. How could she be brought back, be anxiously asked, with fear and trembling. "Have you any remnant of her clothing left in your abode?" asked Morris. "I have," responded the wonder-stricken darkey. "Her shoes are under my bed." "Then," said Morris, "bring them out. I will spit in them, and when it shall have dried up, she shall return into your home with great joy, and both of you shall rejoice." The darkey did as he was told, and looked in vain for the absent one, she having unluckily for Morris' plans, gotten out of the way. The unsophisticated negro subsequently had Morris arrested and fined five dollars for vagrancy. He seems to have lost all respect for him as a voudoist.

A MONUMENT to Adam.

From the N. Y. World.

We do not know how much truth there is in the story, but it is reported that the Rev. Charles Rogers, of England, is about to get up a subscription for the erection of a monument to —Adam, the father of mankind! A company, to be entitled the "Grand International Adamic Monument Association," is to be formed, and the monument is to be erected upon the supposed site of the Garden of Eden, in Mesopotamia. The expense, no doubt, will be great. It is the custom to make a monument never smaller, and generally much larger, than was the mortal body of the hero whose immortal deeds it is intended to commemorate; and, as there is a well-authenticated tradition that Adam was 939 feet high, his monument cannot, in common justice, be less than 9,000 feet in altitude. But it is estimated that a penny subscription from each one of the descendants of this truly great and good man—and it is impossible that one of them should be unwilling to contribute this small sum—would amount to enough to pay for the erection of the monument, and leave enough over to procure a handsome testimonial for Dr. Rogers, who has been the first to suggest that it was time to wipe away the stigma long attached to humanity for having left the memory of the first hero in its history—a man whose name, fame, actions, death and spiritual influence are constantly on our lips—without a commemorative stone to tell the strangers who could appreciate it what he had done!

A great many bare things have been said of Adam; but he should not be forgotten that we owe him much, and that, while all his faults he had many virtues. When Dr. Rogers' subscription paper is sent over here, we shall be ready with our penny, and if he will enlarge his plan so as to include a monument to Eve also, we will be happy to double our subscription.
